THE GAZETTE.

FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 26, 1861.

SPEECH OF VICE-PRESIDENT STEPHENS. Last night, at the hour of 9 o'clock, a large number of citizens congregated in front of the Exchange Hotel, with the First Regiment Band, and serenaded the Hon Alexander H. Stephens, Vice-President of the Confederate States of America. The distinguished gentleman was introduced to the throng by Mayor Mayo, and received with hearty cheers. In response, Mr. Stepheus and accurately compounded. returned his acknowledgments for the warmth of the personal greeting, and his most profound thanks for it as the representative of the Confederate States. He spoke of the rejoicing the secession of Virginia had caused among her Southern sisters .-Her people would feel justified if they could hear it as he had. He would not speak of the States who were out, but those who were in. North Carolina was out, and did not know exactly how she got out. The fires in small papers at 64 and 10 cts., and in bulk when that were blazing here he had seen all along required. Catalogues gratis. For sale by LEADBEATER & CO., his track from Montgomery to Richmond. At Wilmington, N. C., he had counted, on one street, twenty flags of the Confederate States.

The news from Tennessee was equally cheering-there the mountains were on fire. Some of the States still hesitated, but soon in the late Union. She was out by reslutions of her popular assemblies, in Memphis and other cities." Kentucky would soon be out. Her people were moving. Missouri-who could doubt the stand she would take, when her Governor, in reply to Lincolo's insolent proclamation, had said, "You shall have no troops for the furtherance of vonr illegal, unchristian and diabolical star to the Southern galaxy. Where Maryland is, you all know. The first Southern blood had been shed on her soil, and Virginia would never stand idly by and see her citizens shot down. The cause of Baltimore was the cause of the whole South. He said the cause we were engaged in was that which attached people to the old Constitution of the late United States-it was the cause of civil, religious, and constitutional liberty. Many of us looked at that Constitation as the anchor of safety. In Georgia, the people had been attached to the previous Union, but the Constitution which governed it was framed by Southern talent and understanding. Assaults had been made on it ever since it was established-lately, a latitudinous construction had been made by the North, while we of the South sought to interpret it as it was-advocating strict construction, State rights, the right of the people to rule, etc. He spoke of all the fifteen Southern States as advocating this construction,-To violate the principles of the Constitution was to initiate revolution-and the Northern States had done this. The Constitution framed at Montgomery discarded the obsolete ideas of the old Constitution, but had preserved its better portion with some modifications, suggested by the experience of the past, and it had been adopted by the Confederated States, who would stand to it. The old Constitution had been made an engine of power to crush out liberty; that of the Confederated States, to preserve it. The old Constitution was improved in our hands, and those living under it had, like the Phoenix, risen from the ashes. The revolution lately begun did not effect alone property, but liberty. He alluded to Lincoln's call for 75,000 volunteers, and said he could find no authority in the old Constitution for such a flagrant abuse of power. His second proclamation had stigmatized as pirates all who sailed in letters of marque; this was also in violation of the Constitution. which alone gave Congress that power .-What had the friends of liberty to hope for? Beginning in usurpation, where would be end? You were, however, said he, no longer under the rule of this tyrant. With strong arms and stout hearts, you have now resolved to stand in defence of liberty. The Confederate States had but asserted their rights .--They believed that their rulers derived their just powers from the consent of the governed. No one had a right to deny the existence of the sovereign right of secession. Our people did not want to meddle with the Northern | pound, for sale by States-only wanted the latter to let them alone. When did Virginia ever ask the assistance of the General Government?

If there is sin in our institutions, we bear the blame-and will stand acquitted by natural law, and the higher law of the Creator. We stand upon the law of God and Nature .-The Southern States did not wish a resort to arms after secession. Mr. Stephens alluded to the negotiations between Maj. Anderson and the authorities of the Confederate States to demonstrate the proposition. History, he said, if rightly written, would acquit us of the desire to shed our brother's blood.

The law of necessity and of right compelled us to act as we did. He had reason to believe that the creator smiled on it. The Federal flag was taken down without the loss of a single life. He believed that Providence be with us and bless us to the end. We had appealed to the God of battles for the justness of our cause. Madness and folly ruled at Washington. Had it not have been so, several of the States would have been in the old Union for a year to come. The Gods first made mad those they would destroy .-Maryland would join us, and may-be ere long the principles that Washington fought for might be again administered in the city that bore his name. Every son of the South, from the Potomae to the Itio Grande, should rally to the support of Maryland. If Lincoln quits Washington as ignominiously ken Ware, Wood, Glass, &c., received at as be entered it. God's will, will have been accomplished. The argument was now exhausted. Be prepared; stand to your arms; defend your wives and firesides. He alluded to the mementous consequences of the issue involved. Rather than be conquered, let every second man rally to drive back the invader. The conflict may be terrible but the victory will be ours. Virginians, said he, you fight for the preservation of your sacred rights-the land of Patrick Henry-to keep from desecration the tomb of Washington, the graves of Madison, Jefferson, and all you hold most dear .- Rich. Dis.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, ) ALEXANDRIA, April 22, 1861.

Parents, guardians, and those having the control of children and minors, are particularly requested to keep those under their charge out of the streets after night, and to watch over their conduct during the day, otherwise under the aresent state of affairs in our community the results to them may be dangerous.

This is advisory, and it is hoped that those to whom it is addressed, will see the necessity of this notice, and be governed by it.

W. B. PRICE, Mayor. of Major J. Homaros Smoot, as a suitable person to represent this County in the next House of Delegates. As the rural districts hold the balance of power, and have never yet had a representative. simple justice requires that they should have the delegate, inasmuch as the city is claiming both State Senator and member of Congress.

MANY VOTERS.

Mer The name of H. O. CLAUGHTON is presented to the voters of this Senatorial District, as a gentleman emin celly qualified to represent their interests in this department of the State government: and as Alexandria is entitled to the choice of a candidate at this time, his selection for this position, will be urged by MANY CITIZENS.
